ANNIE BREWSTER, in her last letter from Rome has some pleasant bits of gossip about the pope. His holiness is in excellent health. Dr. Ceccarelli, the successor of Dr. Sartoris who went over with appoplexy a few weeks ago, is succeeding famously in his direction of the holy father's health. Dr. Ceccarelli, itis to be hoped, will watch his own health, and remember that unlucky Sartoris was the sixth or seventh physician the pope has lost in ten years. The holy father no longer takes his walks in the vatican gardens, the weather is too hot the evaporation from the numerous foun-; tains causes dampness; the temperature is too varying.

LORD HOUGHTON, in the course of a recent address in England, referred to his visit to this country as follows: Although at the present moment people in the United States were making a series of orations about English tyranny and English oppression, and all that sort of nonsense, he believed, as a nation, they held to us with a feeling of fraternal and hlial regard. With regard to agriculture, he said that within the next fifty years America will have been reduced, notwithstanding its immense space, very THE POWER OF BLACK much to the condition of the European countries in general; that was to say, she would have to recuperate by artificial means the natural wealth which was now being exhausted.

Crete, who have never been satisfied of the European powers, are again organizing for revolution. The population of that historic island is 270,000, of whom 200,000 are Greek christians, the balance being mostly Mohammedans. The agreement of 1868 gave the Cretans exemption from certain imposts, a representative assembly, and some other features of independency, but the hated Turk has remained in the various garrisons, to watch them and intimidate them. A large force has been required there, and several Turkish iron-clads are constantly sailing around the island. There is a great deal of sympathy in Greece for the Cretans. In the last revolution Greek aid was furnished, and quite a serious complication occurred in consequence between Turkey and the European powers. It is likely that the same sympathy will be extended in the present revolution, and the intervention of the powers become necessary. HICKMAN, FULTON CO., KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1876.

A SPANISH POEM. Oh! let the soul its slumbers break. Arouse its slumbers and awake, To see how soon
Life, with its glory glides away,
And the stern footsteps of decay
Come stealing on. you go in, papa ?"

And while we eye the rolling tide Down which our flowing minutes glide Away so fast, Let us the present hour employ,
And deem each future dream of joy
Already past.

Let no vain hope deceive the mind—
No happier let us hope to find
To-morrow than to-day,
Our golden dreams of yore were bright—
Like them. the present shall delight,
Like them decay. Our lives like hasting streams must be,
That into one engulfing sea
Are doomed to fall—
The sea of death, whose waves roll ox
O er king and kingdom, crown and throne,
And swallow all.

Alike the river's lordly tide, Alike the humble riv'let's glide To that sad wave; Death levels property and pride, And rich and poor sleep side by side Within the grave.

Our birth is but the starting place, Life is the running of the race And death the goal,

S. y, then, how poor and little worth Are all those glittering toys of earth

That lure us here?

Dreams of a s'eep that death must break
Alas! before it bids us wake,

Ye disappear.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS. THE MOUSE, THE FROG AND THE LITTLE RED HEN.

ace a mouse, a frog and a litfle red hen Together kept a house;
The frog was the laziest of frogs,
And lazier still was the mouse. The work all fell on the little red hen, Who had to get the wood,
And build the fire, and s rub and cook,
And sozictimes hunt the food. One day as she went scratching around, She found a bag of rye; Said she, "Now who will make some bread?" Said the lazy mouse, "Not I!" "Nor I," said the frog as he dozed in the shade Red hen made no reply, But flew around with bowl and spoon, And mixed and stirred the rye.

"Who'll make a fire to bake the bread?"
Said the meuse again. "Not I;"
And scarcely opening his sleepy eyes,
Frog made the same reply. The little red hen said never a word, But a roaring fire she made;
And while the bread was baking brown,
"Who' set the table?" she said. "Not I." said the sleepy frog with a yawn;
"Nor I." said the mouse, again.
So the table she set and the bread put on;
"Who'll eat this bread?" said the hen.

"I will!" eried the frog, "And I!" squeked the mouse;
As they near the table drew.

"Not much you won't!" said the little red hen,
And away with the loaf she flew.

There is no one source so fraught with advantages to our business men and the community generally. In a purely business expression we say it is "the resurrection and life," and we might add the only salvation to certain departments of business. The farmers, the tobacco growers, are begging Monday Night, 11th Inst. for a market at Hickman. They are absolutely pushing it on us. They have commenced growing tobacco in our immediate vicinity, and with a convenient market hosts of them will follow. Some of our surrounding hills unfit for grain are said to be splendidly adapted for the growth of the finest tobacco. Besides, a large section of country which use to trade at Hickman, but diverted because of late years we have maintained no market for their chief product-tobacco, will DELIVERED to any part of town at be regained
